

This debris pile is from a hard slab avalanche that was triggered by a cornice drop in the Sothern Madison Range. The avalanche ran 1,300 vertical feet through a very tight gully. It would have been nearly impossible to survive if you were caught.

Advisory Region
Southern Madison
Southern Madison, 2011-03-06