

A large cornice, well below treeline on the Baldy Trail, broke free as skiers toured past. The cornice was dripping with water, a strong sign that it's losing internal strength. Although this was low consequence terrain, it illustrates the problems we'll encounter at higher elevations with warmer, spring weather. Photo: C. Kautz

Advisory Region
Bridger Range
Bridger Range, 2012-03-11